

Standing Waves

Standing waves are produced when two waves of the same frequency, wavelength, and amplitude traveling in opposite directions interfere. Different standing wave patterns can be produced that will have different numbers of nodes and anti-nodes.

Diagram: